Bio-Process Systems Alliance Announces 2019-2020 Board of Directors

ARLINGTON, Va., Dec. 6, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- The Bio-Process Systems Alliance, the primary international industry association for single-use bio-processing, today announced that Jeff Carter of GE Health Care Life Sciences has been elected as Chair of its Board of Directors. Carter was unanimously elected to serve a 2-year term beginning January 1, 2019, during the recent election of a full slate of officers.

"It is truly an honor to take on the BPSA Chairman's role for 2019 and 2020," said Carter. "I'd like to recognize John Boehm of CPC, our outgoing Chair. Under his leadership, BPSA has grown in membership and leadership, and has expanded its influence geographically. It will be our intent to continue this direction."

"I know BPSA will continue to grow and prosper under Jeff's leadership," said Boehm. "He has been integral to our long-term success in various BPSA roles, and now as chairman, he will no doubt lead us to further successes in expanding BPSA's global presences." Boehm, who served two terms as Chair, will now serve as an Emeritus member of the BPSA Board.

Officers elected to serve in 2019-2020:

Chair: Jeff Carter, GE Healthcare Life Sciences
1st Vice Chair: Mark Petrich, Merck & Co., Inc.
2nd Vice Chair: Joseph St. Laurent, Chemic Laboratories Inc.

Officers serving through 2019:
